Sean Reid is a special counsel in the Corporate Practice Group in the firm's New York office.

Areas of Practice

Sean has over 15 years of broad experience representing issuers, underwriters and investors in a wide range of corporate transactions, including public and private placements of debt, equity and convertible securities, mergers and acquisitions, joint ventures, and recapitalizations. He regularly represents issuers and underwriters in initial public offerings (IPOs), follow-on public offerings, shelf registrations and private investments in public equity (PIPEs). Sean advises publicly-traded companies on 1934 Act reporting requirements as well as NASDAQ and NYSE compliance and corporate governance matters. Sean has also represented Special Purpose Acquisition Companies (SPACs) in their IPOs, PIPEs and business combination transactions. He represents publicly traded and closely-held domestic and foreign corporations across a wide range of industries, including life sciences, biotechnology, medical device, pharmaceutical, logistics, hospitality, blockchain and cannabis. As an attorney and certified public accountant, Sean offers his clients a unique perspective on a variety of issues, including choice of entity considerations, structuring of complex transactions, as well as reorganization and dissolution of public and private companies.
