

Enforcement Priorities in Healthcare

Healthcare Insights Webinar Series

04.09.2025 | 12:00 p.m. - 12:30 p.m. ET

Although there may be significant reorganization of functions across the U.S. Department of Justice in the coming weeks, many of the Trump Administration's enforcement priorities under the Federal False Claims Act are likely to be familiar: Medicare Advantage, Cybersecurity and COVID-19 pandemic relief fraud. But it is also evident that there are several new prominent areas of focus that are likely to emerge and may have a significant impact on healthcare organizations.

Part 1 of a Webinar Series

Healthcare Insights: Navigating Change under the New Administration

In the first 60 days of the Trump Administration, there has been a cascade of Executive Orders and agency actions promise significant changes to the healthcare legal and regulatory landscape and how healthcare organizations do business today. Understanding these actions, their immediate and long-term implications, and how they are going to be implemented and enforced is crucial for staying ahead in the ever-evolving healthcare industry.

Don't miss Sheppard Mullin's monthly series of 30-minute deep dive discussions, where our team of experts will cover key federal actions and how best to prepare and navigate this new and rapidly changing landscape.
