Breakfast With Your Labor Lawyer - Spring 2013

Presented By: David Chidlaw, Samantha Hardy, & Carole Ross

2013 has ushered in significant developments in labor and employment law of which employers should be aware. At our upcoming seminars, Sheppard Mullin labor and employment attorneys will discuss these important new cases and answer your questions. We will explain how these developments will affect the day-to-day decisions made by business owners, in-house counsel, and human resource professionals. We will also address the current trends in employment litigation and class actions, and discuss how employers can manage risk in the most effective way possible. Please join our experienced attorneys for an informative and lively discussion regarding recent activity in the following areas:

Wage and Hour Developments

- New litigation over “suitable seating” in the workplace – caselaw update
- Ensuring compliance with California’s paystub rules and personnel file inspection protocols that went into effect on January 1, 2013
- Time card rounding and reporting time pay practices – what is permissible in California
- Employee expense reimbursement and uniform/dress code developments
- A post-Brinker look at compliant meal/rest period policies

Workplace Discrimination and Harassment

- New pregnancy leave developments
- Managing legal risk in the area of employee medical leaves of absence
- Round up of recent retaliation and sexual harassment decisions

Plus Updates On...

- Arbitration agreements and class action waivers
- Employee PAGA claims
- The NLRB and “employment at-will provisions”

And many more cutting-edge developments in labor and employment law...

As always, this seminar will be informative, interactive, and engaging. Our attorneys will stay to answer your follow-up questions. We look forward to seeing you there.
