

Meeting the Challenges of Corruption Scandals and Corporate Investigations in China

Part 1 of The China Law Deskbook Series

08.21.2014

11:00 a.m. - 12:30 p.m. ET

Via Webinar

Click here for more details and registration information.

Join China law expert James Zimmerman as he:

- Discusses current trends and outlook concerning ongoing corruption investigations in China
- Explores compliance strategies employed by multinationals implemented to protect the company from the risks of non-compliance
- Discusses strategies and best practices employed by multinationals under investigation

Recent corruption scandals and ongoing investigations of various sectors has brought media attention to the increasing challenges for compliance. As Chinese regulators strengthen their scrutiny, many multinational companies have found themselves in difficulties when they try to expand and compete in markets with different standards, market conditions, culture and legal environments. Even companies with the most sophisticated compliance programs have on occasion been shown not to be able to protect themselves effectively. China is committed to putting an end to corruption, and the efforts are targeting multinationals as well as Chinese companies.

To mitigate the increasing risks and address common challenges, there are advantages for multinational companies to work together constructively to improve their own compliance systems as well as the business environment. The program will host speaker James Zimmerman, the author of the China Law Deskbook and the managing partner for the Beijing office of Sheppard Mullin Richter & Hampton LLP.

Registrants for the series or an individual program can receive 30% off on China Law Deskbook. Enter code CLDCLE2014 at checkout. Discount valid through 12/31/14.

1.50 General CLE Credit Hours

Practice Areas

China

Corporate

International Reach