Interested in meeting early-stage Angel Investors and Venture Capitalists in San Francisco? Then register for the FundingPost event on Thursday, November 5, 2015 at Runway Incubator.

FundingPost has hosted 340+ sold-out venture events in 22 cities over the past 14 years.

At this next event, the panel of investors will focus on Early-Stage Venture Investing: How to meet investors, pitch them, and what it really takes to get them to write you a check! We will be discussing trends in Early-Stage Investing, hot sectors, sectors that these Angels and VCs look at, things that are most important to them when they are considering an investment, the best and worst things an entrepreneur can do to get their attention, additional advice for entrepreneurs, and, of course, the best ways to reach these and other investors. There will be plenty of time for networking with the investor panelists, both before the panel & after the panel at the Cocktail Party!

Twenty-five companies will be selected to pitch to the panel of investors. The investors will vote and the winner will get meetings with the investors.

Register today, as this event will sell-out and seating is limited! This event will be at Runway. An incubator with 280+ startups (80 current, 200 alumni), several partnerships with Fortune 500 brands, and an international network of innovators and thought leaders. This year, they have plans to launch a series of funds, accelerators, and events that will greatly expand their impact domestically and internationally with a particular lens towards education, financial, AI, and hardware technologies.
