Matt Albers, a partner in the Vorys Cleveland office and a member of the health care group, was quoted in a Crain's Cleveland Business story titled “Northeast Ohio's Leaders Break Out Their Crystal Balls.”

The story quoted Matt on the future of health care in Cleveland in 2016, stating:

“In Cleveland, I think you might see more physician group acquisition, more physician integration. You might see more consolidation of what I'll call the ancillary provider market — the diagnostic providers, the ambulatory surgical centers, the independent labs and things of that nature that are around town. Or the large physician super groups that are out there, the 30 and 40 member physician groups that provide services in communities around town.”
