Adam Brandt, chair of the corporate group and a partner in the Vorys Columbus office, was included on the Columbus Business First 2015 “20 People to Know in Law” List. According to the paper, individuals on the list “are front and center in the industry.”

An interview with Brandt was published and included the following question:

What major case are you following closely right now and what ramifications could its outcome have on business?

“As a corporate attorney, I generally follow developments in the law and regulation more closely than specific cases. Currently, I continue to follow the developments in shareholder activism and the increasing regulation in executive compensation. Both are impacting public companies and causing those companies to spend time and resources that otherwise would be spent on business.”
