

Cincione Quoted in Columbus Dispatch Story titled “What’s an Essential Business in Coronavirus Pandemic? Turns out That’s Complicated”

Related Professionals

Karen A. Cincione

Related Services

Government Relations

NEWS | 3.27.2020

Karen Cincione, a principal with Vorys Advisors, was quoted in a Columbus Dispatch story titled “What’s an Essential Business in Coronavirus Pandemic? Turns out That’s Complicated.” The story focused on how businesses can determine whether or not they are “essential” under Ohio’s coronavirus (COVID-19) Stay at Home Order.

The story states:

“Karen Cincione, a principal with Vorys Advisors, an affiliate of the Vorys law firm, said the firm is advising business clients to prepare a statement on why they are essential and - if so - how they are meeting the health requirements of the order.

‘Do you have hand-washing stations? Do you have sanitizers? Some of those things are easy but some aren’t ... Social distancing is different in the manufacturing industry and construction industry and retail industry. Each business has to think about how they best can implement ... each requirement ... I think there’s a lot of concern.’”

To read the entire story, click here. (Subscription may be required).

--

VORYS COVID-19 TASK FORCE

Vorys attorneys and professionals are counseling our clients in the myriad issues related to the coronavirus (COVID-19) outbreak. We have also established a comprehensive COVID-19 Task Force, which includes attorneys with deep experience in the niche disciplines that we have been and expect to continue receiving questions regarding coronavirus. Learn more and see the latest updates from the task force at vorys.com/coronavirus.