Suzanne Scrutton, a partner in the Vorys Columbus office, chair of the firm's health care group and a member of the American Health Law Association's (AHLA) Board of Directors, was featured in AHLA's Speaking of Health Law podcast on April 8, 2022. In the episode, "Conversations with AHLA Leaders: Suzanne Scrutton, Partner, Vorys Sater Seymour & Pease LLP," Suzanne talks about how her first job out of law school working for the Ohio state government proved useful to her current practice, her path to behavioral health law, being the main contact for the trade association representing providers for individuals with developmental disabilities, her advice for handling litigation with the government, and what she wants her "walk-in music" to be when she enters a room.
