Vorys, Sater, Seymour and Pease LLP is pleased to announce that Mark Knueve, a partner in the firm's Columbus office, has been inducted into The College of Labor and Employment Lawyers. The College is a non-profit professional association "honoring the leading lawyers nationwide in the practice of Labor and Employment Law."

According to the College, fellows are recognized as distinguished members of the labor and employment community who promote achievement, advancement and excellence in the practice by setting standards of professionalism and civility, by sharing their experience and knowledge and by acting as a resource for academia, the government, the judiciary and the community at large. Of the College's approximately 1,600 members in the United States and Canada, just 24 are based in Ohio and represent employers. Allen Kinzer, partner in the Vorys Columbus office, has been a member since 2020.

Knueve, who is chair of the firm's labor and employment practice group, primarily represents employers and assists them in litigation matters, focusing on complex employment litigation such as wage and hour class actions and collective actions. He also participates in employment-related arbitrations, as well as employer counseling, training and non-compete matters.

Additionally, Knueve has spoken on a variety of employment-related topics, including sexual harassment, wage and hour, discrimination, investigations, documentation procedures and other employment matters.

Knueve received his J.D. from the University of Virginia School of Law and his B.A. with high distinction from the University of Virginia.
