J.B. Lind, a partner in the Vorys Cincinnati office and member of the litigation group, was recently named the chair of the Northern Kentucky Port Authority (NKPA). He will serve in this role through the end of the organization's 2024 fiscal year.

"This is an exciting time to be chair of the Northern Kentucky Port Authority," said Lind. "I'm looking forward to the NKPA taking a more active role in economic development in Northern Kentucky and pursuing new opportunities to partner with private developers and pursue site preparation."

The NKPA is a multi-jurisdictional Port Authority under Kentucky statute. It facilitates river port projects along the Ohio and Licking Rivers. The NKPA Board oversees the activities of the river port authority, including industrial park development, and asset management.

Lind practices law in both Ohio and Kentucky. He has particular experience with information privacy/data breach litigation, business litigation involving closely-held or limited liability corporations, all areas of workers' compensation litigation, probate/estate litigation and intellectual property litigation. He is also an adjunct professor at the NKU – Chase College of Law teaching in the areas of information privacy and intellectual property.
