Today Vorys launched VorysEdge, an on-demand video training platform to assist clients navigating the constantly evolving complexities of employment law compliance. VorysEdge features programming developed, presented and reviewed by Vorys' labor and employment attorneys.

"In a compliance market flooded with options, having access to trusted sources of information is essential," said Mark Knueve, chair of the Vorys labor and employment group. "VorysEdge will be continuously updated by our nationally recognized attorneys and will help our clients mitigate the risks associated with providing incorrect or outdated trainings to their employees."

With remote workforces and increasing time constraints, it is not always possible for businesses to host and conduct in-person trainings. VorysEdge provides a solution by offering on-demand employment law compliance sessions for HR managers and their teams. Through its user-friendly platform, employees will retain practical information about important employment-related issues. VorysEdge also offers comprehensive tracking and reporting capabilities and gives administrators real-time insights into their compliance efforts.

The VorysEdge training library includes videos covering a myriad of employment law topics including but not limited to: OSHA compliance, ADA accommodations, workplace investigations, hiring dos and don'ts, non-discrimination and anti-retaliation, labor law basics and California wage and hour essentials. Existing courses will be updated periodically or as the law changes and courses will continue to be added to the platform.
