

Publications

Exculpatory Clauses: They May Not Mean What They Say

AUTHORED ARTICLE | 12.1.2014

Cleveland Metropolitan Bar Journal

Lisa Babish Forbes, a partner in the Vorys Cleveland office and a member of the litigation group, authored an article for the Cleveland Metropolitan Bar Journal titled “Exculpatory Clauses: They May Not Mean What They Say.” The article was about the Ohio Trust Code and how sometimes it imposes obligations not found in the plain language of a trust’s exculpatory clause.

To read the article, visit the Cleveland Metropolitan Bar Association website.