Zach assists technology and gaming clients in navigating the complex, rapidly developing body of laws and regulations governing online sports betting, i-gaming and daily fantasy sports.

OVERVIEW

Zachery Roth advises clients in the technology, gaming, advertising and financial services industries on legislative and regulatory issues. Zach has particular experience assisting technology and gaming clients in navigating the complex, rapidly developing body of laws and regulations governing online sports betting, i-gaming and daily fantasy sports. He has successfully procured sports wagering and i-gaming licenses/registrations on behalf of vendors and suppliers in several states, including Pennsylvania, Michigan and New Jersey.

Zach is also routinely called upon to perform 50-state surveys on compliance-related questions concerning a variety of topics, including internet advertising, professional/trade licensing and consumer financing/lending. He takes pride in developing innovative, cost-effective strategies for meeting regulatory obligations and minimizing risks, giving clients the freedom to focus on achieving their business goals.

In addition to the above, Zach has significant insurance coverage and construction litigation experience. He has represented major property and casualty insurers in complex coverage matters involving environmental pollution, long-term exposure to hazardous substances and directors and officers liability. He has also represented construction contractors and surety companies in matters involving construction delay and disruption, breach of an indemnity agreement, and breach of payment or performance bond obligations.

While in law school, Zach served as Managing Editor of the Temple Law Review. He also worked as a judicial intern to the Honorable Thomas I. Vanaskie, of the United States Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit, and the Honorable M. Faith Angell, United States Magistrate for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania.
