

Small and Medium-sized Enterprises and the Sino-American Relationship

The National Committee on US-China Relations
6.10.21

Small and medium-sized enterprises have provided crucial ballast to the U.S.-China bilateral relationship for decades. With tariffs remaining in place and the path forward for SMEs uncertain, what does the future hold?

Join the National Committee on US-China Relations for a virtual program discussing the prospects for U.S.-China economic and trade relations.

Panelists

- Gary Biehn, Chair of the board of the World Trade Center of Greater Philadelphia, Partner and Chair of the China Business Group and International Group at White and Williams LLP
- Ron Bracalente, President and CEO of privately-owned Bracalente Manufacturing Group (BMG)
- Amy Celico, Principal at the Albright Stonebridge Group and Lead of the firm's D.C.-based China practice
- Linda Mysliwy Conlin, President of the World Trade Center of Greater Philadelphia (WTCGP)

This program is held in partnership with the World Trade Centers Association.
